PREFACE

When Vee and I were little girls, of course we played with toys
But we were not as fortunate as all you girls and boys
A doll—a game—and Mother Goose—a sled—a big tin horn
We had to be content with these, 'cause Popeye wasn't born
Today we meet him everywhere, and so we can't complain
'Cause even tho we're both grown up, we feel like kids again
We see him in the funnies, on the screen, in picture books
He's strong, and brave, and loyal, tho he isn't much for looks
But Vee and I decided there's one place he belongs
That's why we got together and wrote these little songs
We showed them all to Popeye, who gave us his okay
He said, "Ahoy there kids! Come on—let's hear you sing and play"
So open up the pages, and you will find a lot
Of little tingle jingle songs from

POPEYE—VEE AND TOT

There isn't much that we can add except a line or two,
To say that we have written songs that Popeye sang to you,
You've heard them on the screen, no doubt, and now you'll find them here,
So give'er sail and heave away in voices loud and clear—
If you should ever find that being happy's quite a job,
Just open up this book and call on

POPEYE—SAM AND BOB
